MAIL HERO WALKS INTO DEATH TRAP

Near Ft. Worth, Texas, the other night, a band of bandits planned to hold up a train, kill the mail messenger, and rob the mail car. Knowing his danger Chief Clerk Page, of the mail service, took the messenger's place. The band was badly shot up and Page was unharmed. Picture shows Page (on right) telling the story of the hold-up to Postmaster-General Will Hays. Two of the robbers were killed by officers who were concealed on Page's car.
